URGENT

Please take notice. This will not effect or buy out of the University project but it will effect any projects that Balfour Beatty has on the table now or has bids out to owners at this time.

PPG has just completed a meeting with Alutions, Extruder and Manufacture, Kynar paint will be taking a 30% increase in the next 2 week. The resin being used in the manufacturing of this product is also used in the manufacturing of batteries. the Battery manufactures are paying the premium and stockpiling the resin. This means PPG and other paint manufactures will not have the resin on hand to produce Kynar.

This will not effect Polycron paint. This product does not use the same resins.

Reach out to any Glazing Contractors that you have used in compiling your bids to owners and make sure they can hold the pricing that they have supplied. Even if they say yes QUESTION it. They my not be privy to this information.

Please feel free to contact me with any questions.
Thank you!

RE: Notification of Potential Supply Disruptions for Johns Manville Fiberglass Products

Dear Valued Building Insulation Customer,

As a result of the winter storm and extreme cold temperatures that occurred in Texas and Louisiana last week, many of the chemical production plants located in these two states are currently not operational. As a result of these plant outages and the force majeure declarations made by several of our suppliers, JM is not receiving adequate chemical feedstocks necessary to fully operate our fiberglass plants. Therefore, due to these circumstances beyond our reasonable control, JM is currently unable to produce at full capacity some of our light density fiberglass products manufactured with the unavailable chemical feedstocks. As a result, we will begin reducing our shipment quantities of these products effective immediately. JM is using all commercially reasonable means to address this situation and will resume full product supply as soon as possible.

Your Account Specialist will work with you regarding the impact on the orders you have placed with JM.

We apologize for any inconvenience caused by this situation, and we greatly appreciate your patience in working with us through this difficult period. We will update you as new information becomes available.

Sincerely,

Tommy Knappich
