Summary Explanation/Background

This Ordinance amends Sections 27-332 and 27-336 of the Broward County Code of Ordinances ("Code") to specifically define and provide for licensing of floating vessel platforms and floating boat lifts (collectively, "FVPs").

Section 403.813(1)(s), Florida Statutes, establishes an exemption from state permitting for the construction, installation, operation, or maintenance of noncommercial FVPs meeting certain criteria, including size and minimization of environmental impacts. It also requires the Florida Department of Environmental Protection ("FDEP") to establish a general permit for FVPs that do not qualify for the exemption and that do not cause significant adverse impacts to occur individually or cumulatively. That section also allows local governments to require one-time licensing of the construction, installation, operation, or maintenance of FVPs, as long as such regulations are no more stringent than the criteria established for the state permitting exception or the FDEP general permit.

After consultation with FVP manufacturer representatives, this Ordinance defines FVPs separately from other types of docks and creates two (2) general licenses: a general license consistent with the state exception criteria and a general license referencing the FDEP general permit. It also provides that applicants obtain a license as otherwise required by the Code for FVPs not meeting the criteria for either of the new FVP general licenses.
