RE: Portfolio and Economic Summary – June 30, 2025

As of June 30, 2025, the Broward County Investment Portfolio had a par value of $6.796 billion and a Yield to Maturity of 3.94% - an increase of 17 basis points compared to December 31, 2025. In comparison, the Bank of America Merrill Lynch 1-3 Year U.S. Treasury & Agency Index benchmark dropped 29 basis points - from 4.25% to 3.96% during the same period. The yield on the County's Portfolio has increased by 309 basis points from June 2022 and continues to closely track the benchmark index.

In May, Moodys downgraded by one notch the US government, however, the downgrade had little impact on the markets. For the year, the Dow Jones Industrial is up 3.6%, the S&P 500 Index and the NASDAQ 100 higher by 5.5% each. The Russell 2000, comprised of small companies, is the only index in negative territory, down by 2.5% for the year. The yield curve remains inverted; compared to the first quarter, two-year yields fell 17bps to 3.72%, three-year treasuries down 21bps at 3.68% and five-year yields were 17 bps lower at 3.79%.

According to Labor Department data from the June report, 147,000 jobs were added, exceeding expectations of 106,000. Initial Jobless Claims at the end of June were 233,000, lower than the estimates of 241,000. The pattern in continuing claims suggests no evidence of increased layoffs nor decrease in hiring rate, a position supportive of higher productivity and economic growth.

The June Consumer Price Index (CPI) rose 0.3% in line with expectations. Core inflation however increased in June by 2.9%, above the Fed's 2% target. Cost of long-lasting goods rose for the first time in about three years. Several categories of goods heavily imported saw notable price increases. Economists at AllianceBernstein believe we are starting to see scattered bits of the effect of tariffs on inflation. More businesses now appear to be throwing in the towel and passing on costs to consumers, including Walmart, Mitsubishi and Nike according to news reports.

The Federal Open Markets Committee (FOMC) has kept the Fed Funds Rate unchanged in the first half of 2025 at 4.50%. Due to the high degree of uncertainty surrounding economic and inflation prospects over the coming months, the Fed policy remains cautious. Interest-rate projections show a split among policymakers, with ten officials expecting at least two rate cuts before the end of 2025, while seven officials foresee no rate cuts this year.
