- a. The purpose of the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention's (CDC) CK19-1904, Epidemiology and Laboratory Capacity for Prevention and Control of Emerging Infectious Diseases (ELC) Grant is to protect the public health and safety of the American people by enhancing the capacity of public health agencies to effectively detect, respond, prevent and control known and emerging (or re-emerging) infectious diseases. ELC is CDC's national funding strategy to support state, local, and territorial health departments to battle infectious disease threats in the U.S. This is accomplished by providing financial and technical resources to support the implementation of three core strategies; (1) surveillance, detection and response, (2) prevention and intervention strategies, and (3) communications, coordination and partnerships.
- b. CDC will support impacted states and territories and potentially reduce the impact of vector-borne diseases through collaborative activities in key areas:
  - i. Supporting states and territories in their implementation of enhanced mosquito surveillance and control strategies in jurisdictions that received significant rainfall, as these jurisdictions may also be at greater risk of mosquito and vector proliferation and subsequent vector-borne diseases;
  - ii. Supporting states and territories in their implementation of mosquito surveillance and control strategies to prevent a subsequent surge in mosquito populations in the next mosquito season, including the implementation of innovative vector control strategies.
